How do I become a registered nurse in Australia?

To become a registered nurse in Australia, internationally qualified nurses and midwives need to successfully complete the OBA (outcome-based assessment).

What is OBA?

Since March 2020, the NMBA (Nurses and Midwifery Board of Australia) has permanently transitioned to the new model of assessment for internationally qualified nurses and midwives and has adopted the outcome-based assessment (OBA) approach to assess and evaluate the qualification of IQNMs. The new model was designed by NMBA and adopted by AHPRA(Australian Health Practitioner Regulatory Agency).

Steps to become Registered Nurse in Australia through OBA program.
